

Seedling News

Watching this group over the last month and seeing all the personality and quirks really start to show has left us laughing time and time again. This group is really a riot and each of them is very unique in their own way.

Teagan bottom scoots everywhere, possibly because she can't carry her toys around with her on all fours. She is starting to take steps on her own and is very proud to be on her feet. We especially love her little shoulder shimmy she does and her serious disgust at the prospect of eating vegetables; only meat, cheese and carbs for this little lady. Adelyn seems to have given up on the idea of crawling for now because she seriously loves to roll. She is like a steam roller going across the floor and will roll over anything that gets in her way; regardless of how big. She has also begun to pull up to a stand, disapproves of socks on her right foot, and every time she hears music, she starts to dance. Boden is living up to his Bodenasaurus t-shirt, pushing up to a stand in the middle of the class with his arms tucked in growling and roaring like a little t-rex until he falls back down on his bottom. His balance is awesome and we are sure he will start taking steps any day now. Kellen has become fascinated with twirling his wrists. He sits on the floor with his double jointed arms stretched wide, twirling his wrist around and around laughing. He is also moving around more on the floor and getting very close to crawling. Pierce has got the commando crawl figured out and is getting faster and faster moving around the class. Every time we turn around he is exploring something new. Reese really loves the new bouncer and can really get it rocking, but she likes to have an audience so she'll squeal until we look at her and then bounce like a maniac laughing. Scarlett is really starting to enjoy her friends and loves when they come over to her at the gym or chair to visit with her. They will smile and coo to her and she will smile and coo at them back. She even lets them hold her hand as long as they don't touch her on the head, that crosses the line and she will let them know.

This month we welcomed Knox and Nick to our room and have enjoyed getting to know them. Knox is an easy going little guy with big ambitions and hugs. He is almost keeping up with Pierce's commando crawling across the floor and is even pulled himself into the ball pit a couple times. He's also been attempting to stand already...go Knox! However, every time Mrs. Jolene picks him up, he's all hugs and chin kisses. Nick is just a little peanut, but he knows what he wants...a belly full of milk and a comfortable shoulder to hang out on. He's getting interested in the toys on his gym and also likes hanging out in the chair watching his friends. He will often smile at us when he hears us talking and we love his little giggle.

As you can imagine, this group really keeps us on our toes. They're full of energy and spirit, and always keep us laughing. When we have a crazy day and feel like we are at the end of our ropes, we just look at these guys and can't help but laugh no matter how difficult the day has been. It will definitely be hard to let this group go.

We hope everyone has a great month and keep bringing those jackets! You never know when the weather will give us an awesome day to go out for some fresh air.

Happy Spring!
